We are unable to find much fault with our current governor, Mr. Paul Johnson, but regret the fact that he's apparently so occupied with matters of state that he's unable to send out proclamations almost weekly announcing the official observance of such earthshaking events as National Pickle Week, Anti-spit week or perhaps even Be Kind to Pigeons Week. We miss this steady stream of official documents boldly embossed with the great seal of the state of Mississippi with which the former occupant of the Governor's mansion in Jackson, Mr. Barnett kept us so bountifully supplied. For instance we might have forgotten to mention that this week, July 14-20 is National Rabbit Week and next week we must observe Farm Safety Week, July 19-25—so we'll send congratulations to all rabbits in the area, . . . those who are here now and those bound to arrive before the week is out, . . . and remind all of our farming friends to check the wiring in milking machines, . . . just think how uncomfortable your cows would be if one of the milking units happened to develop a short!

A woman's point of view

So much for weeks, . . . now a feminine comment on the still much discussed topless bathing suit fad. Pie Kammer wants to go on record as being of the opinion that women so garbed couldn't look worse than a man wearing his sleeveless undershirt on the beach! We're inclined to concur having observed several rather obese males strutting around with slightly soiled undershirts, baggy Bermuda shorts and wrinkled socks.

Happy birthday greetings go to both Mr. and Mrs. Basil Cockshott—he cut his cake Sunday, July 12, and she celebrated Wednesday, July 15.

Jane and Baby Benvenuti have recuperated from their Fourth of July holiday, . . . when they finally came back to life they started counting heads and realized that they had entertained a total of 45 guests over the three day weekend.

Arch Whitlow is also in line for birthday greetings, . . . he caught up with Jack Benny on Thursday, July 9.

Flora Maffray was armed with her cameras when she and Alden met Julie, Larry and the two little Maffrays on their arrival at Moisant airport last Wednesday night when they flew in from Monroe, La., via jet. They were entertained at a dinner for 20 members of the family at the Maffray home on Sunday and guests enjoyed turkey, roast, potato salad, baked beans and similar delicacies. Larry had to return home on Tuesday but Julie and the children will remain for several additional weeks.

Ballerinas of the Bulge are so enjoying their dancing lessons that teacher Dottie Russell contemplates continuing classes during the winter if enough show interest. The gals are at present learning the calypso. Pat Fayard missed her lesson Wednesday night as she and husband Bobby celebrated their wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. O.H. Williams are the owners of a shiny new white automobile.

Floundering is terrific

Local anglers Buck Ladson and Lee Ferrell continued on their winning ways at last week's fishing rodeo—Buck's blackfish was second and Lee took top honors in Sunday's daily floundering competition. Speaking of floundering, the water and tide were excellent for this sport last week. Margie Lenfant (on her first such expedition) Maria and J.D. Peterson caught eight lovely ones last Thursday night off Jackson Ridge. Margie reports another flounder came in with 22 from the same location.

Dropping by Waveland while vacationing in Pass Christian last week were Irma and Rube Duncan and Irma's attractive sister Ruby here on a visit from Washington, D.C. Irma and Rube live in the Crescent City but have spent many summer weeks in Waveland.

On taking wheat to Russia

Rev. Bertrand Eckert returned home from his latest voyage just in time to meet his newest granddaughter, Little Yolanda Ann Connell who with her parents, Joyce and Billy, and sister Kim were visiting from Chicago. Rev. Eckert had a most interesting report on his wheat delivering trip to Russia where he says the situation is best described by saying that guards are hired to watch the guards, that watch the guards that guard them, . . . he went on to say that living conditions are unbelievably bad in Russia, that the people are sacrificed to speak to Americans although he was invited to view a tiny screen television in a three room home housing eight families. The men of the ship really had a gay time in Odessa where only the principal streets are paved, the byways being little better than muddy cow paths—they were restricted to visiting the opera, museums or more—operas His stop in Poland to deliver a small load of wheat was much more pleasant and he said the Poles were the least cowed people he'd met behind the iron curtain.

The Clifford Bourgeois of Memphis, Tenn., are vacationing in Waveland as guests of Clifford's mother, Mrs. Lydia Bourgeois. The three younger Bourgoises are in the Crescent City visiting Clifford's sister and brother-in-law, Melinda and Guy Drew.

Added fishing note—Joe Perkins, Francis Carr and Mr. F. Webber of New Orleans really caught a good mess of red fish at Half Moon on Monday.

Ella Favre (Mrs. Charles) Jensen left via plane for New York City last week enroute to Europe where she'll tour a number of countries.

Josie and Bob Haynes will be off on yet another trip Friday. They leave for Natchez, where they'll be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Heydel. Guy will be remembered locally as Bob's best man in the Haynes' wedding last year.

Recuperating

We're most happy to report that Mrs. Margaret Marzig is now much, much better and is able to be up and around in her room and should soon be out of Hancock General Hospital.

Jane and Eddie Bourgoise were over for the weekend for the first time in quite a while. They had been confined to New Orleans as little Arctic has been ill. First measles, then a tonsillectomy and finally mumps. Now Eddie's in the weather. While here they visited Jane's father, Alton Stetler, who is in Hancock General recovering from a severe heart attack. Son Robert E. Marzig Corps, an attorney here, is also home leave on Saturday and Alton vowed to make his medicines as could Kate Saux is testing her wardrobe for comfortability so she'll know what's practical when she and Roy visit the World's Fair next month.

For the benefit of those who have inquired as to the outcome of Ann and Ed Porter's closet door conflict we're happy to inform our and all that the door has been re-hung and everybody concerned is happy!

How 'bout it

We've been asked to remind the "powers that be" of their year old promise to blacktop Waveland Cut Off Road, which is still not much better than a muddy path! Also to ask who is supposed to enforce the law against indiscriminate parking of trailers?

More on fishing—Joseph di-

Benedetto almost caught two tarpon off the Bay bridge Tuesday—the first one threw the hook, the second broke his line, but he had an exciting time to land these game fish.

Clem Peuruse, handsome as ever in his summer uniform, wide brim panama and beret has announced his intention, . . . and we won't even have to ask if he has any luck, . . . we always get them!

Banana Bonanza

With its modern and efficient unloading equipment, the Gulfport State Port is now a major Banana Port making a substantial contribution to Mississippi's growing economy. Within two and one-half days three banana ships discharged their cargoes from ships chartered by Effo Banana Sales Corporation, Ecuadorian Fruit Import Corporation and Standard Fruit Steamship Corporation.

The State of Mississippi has recently assumed leadership in cultivating commercial and cultural contacts with the Latin Americas. Many efforts are being made to increase commerce between the cities of the Gulf Coast and the cities in the Republics to the south of us. The federal government, under the Alliance for Progress and other agencies, seeks to strengthen our relations with the Latin Americas. Commerce is not a one-way but a two-way street. It is trade, not aid, that will ultimately strengthen our ties with other peoples. One of the best ways to increase trade with the Latin Americas is to buy their products. Every banana we eat, every cup of coffee we drink gives them an economic lift. So, bananas are good for us in more ways than one, and Mississippians would do well to encourage their consumption. Every banana we eat helps build our State Port which is so strategic to the commercial and industrial development of the state. International trade is essential to the prosperity of the state and the nation and our problem is one of exchanging our goods to our mutual profit. Ships unloading bananas at Gulfport, and other ships taking on Mississippi-manufactured ammonium nitrate for ultimate delivery to Latin American plantations help pave a two-way street across the sea to an increasing prosperity. So eat another banana and help build Mississippi's State Port.

In every state on tidewater in the USA at least one major port has been developed to become the most stimulating factor in the expansion of its commerce and industry. By patronizing their own port, Mississippians sail on to a more prosperous future.

Teen Times

For the past couple of years we've been sort of on the fence when writing news of the doings of other college students or working boys and girls... there was a certain amount of trepidation as to whether they would object to being in the column although some are 20 or 21 or older; so to settle the matter once and for all we've spent a number of hours talking to our readers and have come up with the conclusion that regardless of age (under 25 or 26), most members of the younger set look here for what's going on among their contemporaries... a policy must be established... so, we're giving you a choice... unless you're enmeshed in the bonds of matrimony or insist on seeing your name exclusively in the "adults and babies only" column, we'll continue to give several years' leeway age-wise when reporting on activities... in fact, if it will make the more "mature" happy it just might be possible to call the column Teen Times Plus.

For example... one of our very favorite post-teen-agers, Faye Monti... was bid a fond and sad farewell several months ago... yet as this was the natural medium for such a release, and last week's bit was completed, nothing was said about the fact that she spent last weekend in Lakeland, Fla., with the Mississippi State championship softball team playing in a tournament.

Another in this age group is Millie Usher who gets get well wishes... Millie was unable to play softball Thursday night due to a tonsillectomy.

Paula Crider is sporting a metal cast on the hand she injured while playing the same night.

Melva Luke and Mary Alice Kingston had an exciting night when they helped Jo Ann McCullough christen her new backyard cottage. Sometime during the wee hours they heard sounds which they were certain was someone trying to break-in. After several moments of torture they summoned enough courage to investigate... the prowler turned out to be Jo Ann's dog!

A special happy birthday wish goes to teen time reporter Donna Garriga who was 15 last Tuesday, June 30. Mary Ann Becker hosted a surprise party in her honor the previous day. Guests were Martha Lynch, Becky Prewo, Ann Morian, Julie Delph, Mary Lagarde and Faye di Benedetto.

Faye di Benedetto returned home last week after visiting Susan Hammer in New Orleans.

Becky Prewo has a new hobby: square dancing... anyone else interested in this pastime may get in touch with her.

Donna Garriga and Mary Ann Becker report a fabulous time at Ponchartrain Beach last Wednesday.

Irene Thomas and Barbara Noosa have thoroughly enjoyed pre-Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo activities including a trip to Baton Rouge where they visited LSU, the Governor's mansion and appeared on tv twice; appearances on Henry Dupre's tv show in New Orleans and Jackson, where they were viewed on both tv channels, heard on the radio and toured Governor Johnson's home. They also appeared on Just Coasting on WLOX in Biloxi.

Chris Barkley, a '64 Bay High graduate, will enter Mercy Hospital in Vicksburg for nurses' training in September.

Lynn Rose has returned to Baptist Hospital after spending a 30-day vacation here. Dropping in on Lynn Sunday was frequent summer visitor Lynn Piquet.

CYO members gave Rev. Michael Kelly a warm welcome home... he returned from a trip to his native Ireland on June 26.

Pretty Dianne Bradford is now employed at City Hall.
